

Bordeaux 2007: a prime time?

Our man in Bordeaux, Gavin Quinney, tasted over 550 wines in late March and early April, during the annual trade tastings of the latest vintage. Here is his report

While 2007 is a fair-to-good vintage for red wines, with no shortage of well-made, attractive wines from the best chateaux at all levels, there are few really outstanding wines. However, it is an excellent vintage for sweet whites, with the top estates in Sauternes and Barsac producing their best wines since 2001. The best should be worth seeking out en primeur as futures. This is also a very good vintage for dry whites, especially those made from Sauvignon Blanc from better vineyards.

For the reds, hundreds of chateaux on the Right Bank made supple, early maturing, easy drinking wines from Merlot and a dash of Cabernet Franc. Pomerol performed best of all, with lovely, quaffable wines, and many estates across Saint-Emilion, the Côtes and in Fronsac, produced good, tasty reds by not overdoing it. Enormous, oil-slick wines are less fashionable these days.

On the Left Bank, most chateaux in Pessac-Léognan made attractive reds to accompany their very good dry whites. North of Bordeaux, there is less consistency in the much larger and commercially more important estates of the Médoc. While many chateaux made very good wines, only a few properties succeeded with really delicious stuff, while other wines showed green, unripe characters. Margaux is just such a mixed bag.

The later-ripening Cabernet Sauvignon performed far better than Merlot in Pauillac, St-Julien and St-Estephe, so blends for the first wines at many chateaux reveal even higher levels of Cabernet Sauvignon than usual – up from 67 per cent at Ducru Beaucaillou for their 2005 to 90 per cent for their 2007, for example. Although there are some excellent wines, all châteaux made wines in a lighter style, with lower acidity and less weight, structure, and depth than they have been blessed with of late. Yet with the high Cabernet count in these appellations, it's a bit early to assume that all reds from 2007 will be for early drinking.

In short, 2007 is what the trade calls "a good restaurant vintage". If that means good for drinking with food, then it's no bad thing.

The season

An early start and a late finish characterised this vintage, which was saved by fine weather in September after a miserable summer.

A hot April accelerated growth in the vineyard after an early budbreak, only for the cool and damp months of June, July and August to slow things down. Mildew was a constant threat, and top chateaux at all levels worked hard to keep the vines in good shape – but the prospects were very gloomy as the holidays came to a close. Then, on August 30, just in the nick of time, fine sunny weather and a dry northerly wind arrived, and it stayed clear for much of September.

The harvest was concentrated around the end of September through to late October. Key for the reds was the long hang time from flowering to harvest, given the early start and the late finish, with some vineyards achieving ripeness while others fell short.

It's certainly a modern vintage. Given the same conditions 20 years ago, the wines would have been meagre at best. As it is, with the huge investments across Bordeaux, and the advances in viticulture and winemaking, it's a pretty satisfactory result.

The market

If it was a tricky vintage, it'll be even more demanding to sell the stuff en primeur. There are a few compelling wines, but few compelling reasons for importers or consumers to place primeur orders for the vast majority of reds that will be on offer.

With the weak pound and dollar, a price drop of 15 per cent is needed to stay at the same price point as the higher quality 2006s. But for the wines to be attractive to export markets outside the euro zone, en primeur prices would have to come down to less than the current price of the 2004s – and this is unlikely. Many UK merchants will offer quite limited lists of 2007s, with many including just the old favourites and those highly rated by Robert Parker. And there won't be many of those.

Primeur sales should be solid for around 75 classic "labels", that include second wines from top chateaux, compared to over 350 labels for the 2005s. Much of the slack will be taken by French supermarkets, which will be looking to stock shelves for their "foires aux vins" in September 2009. Many Bordeaux buyers in search of a bargain will be sitting this one out then.

Gavin Quinney moved to Bordeaux in 1999 when he bought Château Bauduc. For the past eight years he's been making the house white wine for Gordon Ramsay and Rick Stein and has been reviewing the primeur campaigns since 2000. He became the Bordeaux critic for Wine & Spirit in 2006.

Bordeaux 2007 Top Picks

The big eight – Latour, Lafite, Mouton, Margaux, Haut Brion, Cheval Blanc, Ausone and Pétrus – have made excellent wines in 2007, but we won't see UK prices being greatly reduced, given supply and demand, and the strength of the euro. Unlike 2005, this is not a great vintage for investing in reds, so here is my selection of sought-after wines for a balanced cellar. Prices are rough estimates and scores are out of 100.

Cos d'Estournel, St-Estèphe 91-94

£700

Low yields of 34hl/ha (compared to 46hl in 2006 and 52hl in 2007 at Montrose next door) are half the story. This oozes class and precision, like a modern-day 1985, which is fabulous even now. 85% CS, 12% M. 2016-2030

Troplong Mondot, St-Emilion 91-93

£500

A deep, dark wine that's stacked with ripe Merlot fruit, yet it is still fresh and balanced. Velvety texture and long finish. The mid-October harvest was the latest for 20 years, with low yields of 27hl/ha. 90% M, 10% CS/CF. 2012-2022

Pontet-Canet, Pauillac 92-93

£450

An amazing wine for the vintage, this is deep and structured with layers of pure black fruits. Alfred Tesseron didn't pick until October and had tiny yields of 29hl/ha. 70% CS, 25% M. 2014-2028

Moulin Saint-Georges, St-Emilion 90-91

£350

I can't afford Ausone, one of the greats of the vintage. But Alain Vauthier's less famous property is beautifully made, too – a gorgeous blend (80% M, 20% CF) aged in 100 per cent new oak. Full, yet graceful and delicious. 2013-2022

Pichon-Longueville Baron, Pauillac 92-93

£525

No doubting the ambition here – and it shows in the wine. The lowest production of Pichon for years (13,000 cases), made from low yields of 32hl/ha. A beautiful, elegant wine with deep cassis fruit. 74% CS. 2013-2025

L'Eglise Clinet, Pomerol 92-94

£650

The fourth great vintage on the trot from Denis Durantou. A beautifully crafted Pomerol (85% M, 15% CF) with wonderful intensity and vigour, and great balance. Only 1,300 cases. 2013-2030

Le Clarence de Haut-Brion, Pessac-Léognan 90-91

£375

A new second wine from Haut-Brion, replacing Bahans, commemorates 75 years of family ownership. A graceful wine that will be pure pleasure in five to seven years. 51% M, 34% CS, 15% CF; 7,000 cases. 2011-2018

L'Evangile, Pomerol 92-93

£950

A famous estate now making truly outstanding wines – great terroir coupled with impeccable work in the new cellar. This is 86% Merlot and 16% Cabernet Franc aged in 100 per cent new oak. Pure, soft and wonderful; 3,200 cases. 2012-2026

Ferrière, Margaux 88-90

£175

Primeur buyers want consistent quality and fair pricing, and Claire Villar's tiny third growth has delivered on both counts since 2000. Croquant blackcurrant fruit and well-knit tannins. 70% CS, 25% M. 2012-2020

Clos l'Eglise, Pomerol 91-93

£650

In the last decade, Hèlène Garcin's 6ha estate has produced super wines in lighter years, like the 1999 and 2002. Picked in October, the 2007 will be a real crowd-pleaser. Sexy, suave and beautifully made. 80% M, 20% CF. 2011-2020

Pavillon Blanc du Margaux, Bordeaux Blanc 91-93

£450

The Château Margaux red is very good, but the dry white is the special one in 2007. Pure Sauvignon Blanc, made and aged in barriques. But there should be a law against the 15.5% alcohol. In fact, there is; 1,250 cases. 2010-2016+

Domaine de Chevalier blanc, Pessac-Léognan 92-93

£500

There'll be no shortage of demand for this outstanding dry white, made from 90 per cent Sauvignon Blanc. Wonderful complexity. While this white DdC is the more famous – and more expensive – don't forget the red this year. 2010-2022

Malartic-Lagravière blanc, Pessac-Léognan 91-93

£350

For me, the best white that the Bonnie family have made since taking over in 1997. Just 7ha of white vines, and low yields of Sauvignon Blanc (95% of the wine in 07). Explosive, grassy fruit and very long finish. 2009-2017

Haut Bergey blanc, Pessac-Léognan 90-92

£250

A tiny 2ha vineyard, and the wine is usually fairly priced, so catch it while you can – and few are saying that about 2007 reds. Racy and zippy, and yet there's genuine class here. Long and delicious. 2009-2015

The 2007 vintage is excellent for sweet whites, even if they are not quite as good as the brilliant 2001s. They can be drunk young, too.

Most top chateaux picked over a period of six to seven weeks, going through the vineyard several times from September 10 to the end of October.

The wines from all the best estates are delicious – pale gold, with rich and intense, sometimes exotic, fruit and refreshing zip.

And, as Robert Parker doesn't tend to pass judgment on Sauternes at this en primeur stage, there is more chance of a relative bargain. Prices (here, again, estimates) are released in May, before most of the top reds.

d'Yquem, Sauternes 95-98

£3,000

The only "legend in the making" from 2007. A wine of extraordinary power and intensity with a finish that goes on and on. Just 40 per cent of the tiny production went into d'Yquem; the rest is sold as generic Sauternes. 2015-2030

Climens, Barsac 93-96

£600

I tasted samples from 13 barrels, each from a different stage of the harvest. All Semillon, all very good, some truly outstanding – especially those from mid-October. Each with something to add to the final blend. 2014-2028

Coutet, Barsac 93-96

£330

Pale gold. Marmalade peel and white flowers on the nose and then an explosive palate. So unctuous. Seriously sweet yet so elegant, and very long. Tiny yields of 10hl/ha – just a fifth of a top red. A must. 75% Sem, 23% SB 2010-2022

Suduiraut, Sauternes 93-95

£430

A polished, reliable performer in the past 10 years. Pale, fine gold. Cinder toffee nose. Rich and elegant, lovely balance and very pure. Super sleek and a long, long finish. 92% Sem, 8% SB 2012-2024

Guiraud, Sauternes 92-95

£320

Deep gold with a hint of barley sugar. Honeyed, handsome, racy and a real crowd-pleaser. Lovely, exotic fruit but fresh aftertaste. Large dash of Sauvignon Blanc? 2010-2020

Lafaurie-Peyraguey, Sauternes 92-95

£320

Deeper gold. Rich, intense and stylish. Creamy texture. Hint of vanilla and white peaches. Sweet and long with fresh acidity. 90% Sem 2011-2022

Doisy Daëne, Barsac 92-95

£250

Pale yellow with pronounced passion fruit on the nose. Lovely, zesty, rich, honeyed and long. Delicious and very fine. From white wine guru Denis Dubourdieu and usually good value. 2011-2020

La Tour Blanche, Sauternes 92-94

£320

Tasted a few times, and it keeps getting better. Seriously well made. Rich, sweet and powerful. Orange candy and delicate spicy notes. 80% Sem, 15% SB, 5% Muscadelle 2012-2023

Rieussec, Sauternes 91-93

£430

Pale in colour. Lovely nose. Quite restrained for now: attractive, gentle, sweet fruit, but it feels like there is more in reserve. 97% Sem 2013-2025

Clos Haut Peyraguey, Sauternes 91-93

£320

Pale gold. Subdued on the nose, but intense peachy, citrus fruit on the palate. Very correct, rich and attractive. Classic Clos Haut Peyraguey. 90% Sem 2010-2020

Sigalas-Rabaud, Sauternes 90-92

£260

Very deep gold with an amber edge. Oodles of upfront apricot fruit. Rich, fulsome and fun. Relatively large yields of 24hl/ha. 80% Sem, 20% SB 2010-2018

Nairac, Barsac 90-92

£360

Tasted from barrels as well as from a single blended sample. Unctuous and very sweet, with lovely core of citrus fruit. 2012-2022

Rayne Vigneau, Sauternes 89-92

£250

de Fargues, Sauternes 89-91

£450

d'Arche, Sauternes 89-91

£200

Rabaud Promis, Sauternes 89-91

£240

Doisy Vadrines, Sauternes 88-90

£200

de Malle, Sauternes 88-90

£250

Filhot, Sauternes 87-89

£170

Bordeaux 2007 – Top Left Bank selections

This is clearly a vintage for drinking and not investing. Cabernet Sauvignon performed better than Merlot in Pauillac, St-Julien and St-Estèphe, and there's no shortage of good wines for drinking from 2013 to 2025. There are some excellent dry whites, too.
